

Peter Frendin

Peter Frendin started his professional life by training as a general Nurse at Sydney Hospital in the mid 70s and has had a varied career in health ever since. Peter has worked as a remote area nurse in SA and WA, managed hospitals and regional health services in NSW, WA and the NT and worked in Dubai and India as a health management consultant. More recently he headed remote health services for the NT Department of Health in Central Australia overseeing some 33 remote health centres and prison health facilities. Having qualifications in Nursing and midwifery he holds a postgraduate qualification in Health Services Management and is a graduate of the Australian Institute of Company Directors and a Consumer and Community Advisor with the Cancer Institute of NSW. Peter is married to his long suffering wife Jenn (24 moves in 35 years would try anyone's patience!) and they have two (nearing) middle aged boys. Both Peter and Jenn are passionate about Indigenous and rural/remote health, with Jenn currently overseeing the remote AOD Workforce program here in the NT. Peter meanwhile has taken on a new challenge as the NSW/ACT General Manager for the AGPAL Group of companies, Australia's most comprehensive quality and accreditation agency in the health and human services sector.
