

Trish Maroney

Trish Maroney is a Wardaman woman from Katherine Region. She has worked as a Speech Pathologist in Aboriginal Medical Services in remote Communities in the Region and in Katherine Township for 7 years. She also has significant clinical, policy and governance experience within the primary health care setting in South Australia. Trish currently supervises visiting Speech Pathology students undertaking their clinical placement in Katherine in her role with Flinders University to enable increased access to clinical services, develop culturally safe practice skills in the next generation of clinicians and to develop allied health recruitment and retention at the local level.