Cath Cantlon

Cath Cantlon has practised professionally in a range of art forms for 36 years. Originally a theatre designer, she has also worked as an exhibiting artist, a project artist in community cultural development and in arts administration. In 2001, she received the Australia Council’s Ros Bower Award for her contribution to community cultural development in regional areas and in 2012 she received a state government Ruby Award for her lifetime achievement in community arts work.

With Country Arts SA, Cath is currently creative producer of a three-year arts, health and environment program rolling out in the southern regions of South Australia.
