George Khut

George Khut is an Australian artist and design-researcher working across the fields of electronic art, design and health. He holds a Doctorate of Creative Arts from the University of Western Sydney, Australia—for his research into biofeedback-based interactive artworks, and has taught interaction design and human-centred design methods at University of Technology Sydney, Faculty of Design, Architecture and Building, School of Design. He completed his undergraduate studies in fine arts at the University of Tasmania, Centre for Arts in 1994, where he studied painting, sculpture, ceramics, video and electronic music.