Rachel Latimore

Rachel Latimore is a nutritionist who is passionate about improving the health of Australian youth and women. Rachel currently works at Diabetes Queensland as a health promotion officer where she teaches students the importance of healthy eating and lifelong cooking skills. Rachel believes in the true value that nutrition education and cooking skills provide in improving the health of our Australian population.