

Jacqueline Gibbs

Jacqueline Gibbs is 24-year-old Gamilaray/Yuwalaraay woman from Goodooga, a community located in north-western NSW. Better known as 'Jack' to her clients, she has been running the Kelso Indigenous Chronic Disease Clinic for four years, since its inception. With Jack at the helm, the clinic has evolved from a primarily diabetes-centred clinic into a wider chronic disease clinic. In 2014, Jack completed the Indigenous Youth Leadership Program challenging her to 'step out of her comfort zone' with a highlight being completing the Kokoda Track walk.
