

Fiona Nash

NSW Nationals Senator, Fiona Nash was elected to the Australian Senate in 2004 and her term began on 1 July 2005. She lives with her husband David on a property at Crowther near Young in the south-west of NSW and they are the parents of two teenage boys, Will and Henry.

Her experience with the party includes branch chairman, state executive, delegate to Federal Council, to National Party Whip in the Senate and her current position as Deputy Leader of the Nationals in the Senate.

Senator Nash's parliamentary roles have included Shadow Parliamentary Secretary for Water Resources and Conservation, Shadow Parliamentary Secretary for Regional Education and she is now the Assistant Minister for Health.

